

Islamic Human Sciences

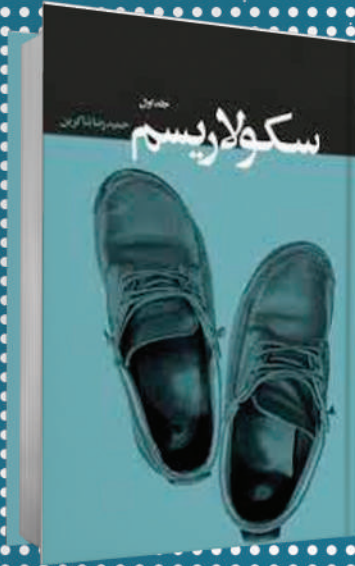

1 Free-thinking and Freedom

Author: Dr. Mohammad Hekmatnia

Examining the fundamentals of free-thinking in Islam and Islamic society

The author of this monograph has endeavored to engage with the fundamental philosophical, theological and judicial aspects of freedom, illuminate the relationship of government with the freedom of speech, and lay out the judicial structure of countries respective to this issue. The freedom of speech is a significant part of the basic freedom of people, which is analyzable from the perspective of the empirical and rationalistic epistemology founded on divine wisdom. This freedom and the limits of its exceptions are analyzable in terms of the various fundamental characteristics of philosophy and judiciary.

2

Secularism

The two-volume monograph examines secularism from the perspective of Muslim thinkers and provides a critical outlook toward it. In this book, we read about:

- What is meant by secularism? And what difference it has with secularization and laicism.
- What are the grounds for the actualization of secularism in the West and Christianity?
- Does religion and politics have distinct aims? What kind of relationship is between religion and government?
- Doesn't engaging with worldly benefits and profits lead to downsizing the status of God and the prophets?
- If we consider religion as something personal and optional and government as a social phenomenon with obligations, how could these two be brought together?
- Religion is an embodiment of God's grace and is a harbinger of benevolence, and using force and violence is a necessary counterpart of exerting power and governance. In this case, how could religion, and politics and government be compatible?
- Doesn't making religion worldly or government and politics religious, lead to instrumentalizing religion for political purposes and gains?
- Isn't the interference of religious intellectuals in politics at odds with the sanctity of religion and their own?

3

The People's Right in Government

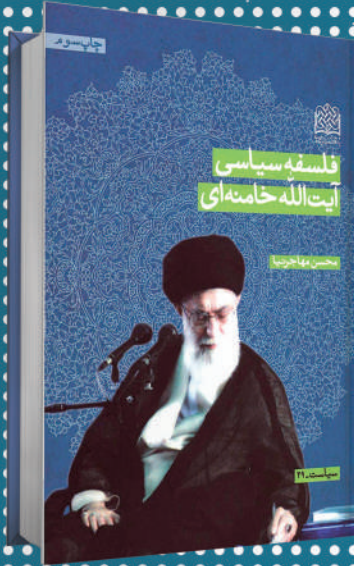

Author:

Mohammad Hassan Ghadrddan Gharamalaki

This monograph tries to demonstrate that while the prophet's government is also the divine government, it also deals with the people's rights and genuine place in fourteen centuries ago, and the book depicts this not only theoretically, but in practice and reality as well.

The author puts forward four main arguments in his discussion:

- 1) People's role in a government
- 2) People's role in the administration of a country
- 3) The necessity of an amiable and emotional relationship between ruler and citizens
- 4) People's rights in legislation

4

The Political Philosophy of Ayatollah Khamenei

Author: Mohsen Mohajernia

This book explains the political philosophy of Grand Ayatollah Sayyed Ali Khamenei in six general points: the methods of understanding and the fundamentals of political philosophy, the relations between personal and social lives, the reality of citizen life, the place of government and governance, and ultimate and ideal inclinations in political philosophy. It is endeavored that besides numerous references to the thoughts of Grand Ayatollah Sayyed Ali Khamenei, the brevity and conciseness should be observed as well.

5

The Method of Culturalizing Continence in the Quran

Author: Abdul Karim Behjatpour

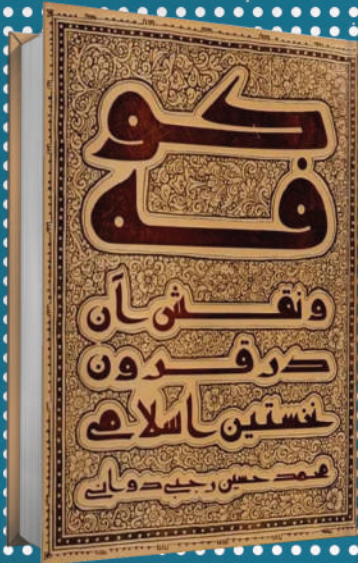

One of the most important and key cultural components is the issue of ethics, habits, and the sexual behavior of people. Many people are looking for a way to acquire continence. In order to transform the people in an impure society, the Quran at first, advocates for some gradual changes at several stages, so as to create a pure and refined society. In this book, the stages of transformation from sexual incontinence to continence according to the Quran have been taken into consideration, and it is endeavored that the book presents a proper pattern for continence. The book is set in four chapters.

6 The Forty-year Ascension

The narrative of the forty-year of progress and development of the Islamic Republic under the shadow of sanctions

According to the international statistics, the developments and achievements of the Islamic Republic of Iran during the last four decades indicate the overwhelming success of the Islamic Republic despite all problems and deficiencies. The Forty-year Ascension, which results from 17,000 hours of research by seventy researchers, studies the level of achievements of the IRI in justice, independence, spirituality, freedom, woman's dignity, religious democracy, the expansion of public welfare, etc. using international statistics and factors. The unique feature of this book is its references to the most authentic international sources, such as the United Nations' data, The World Bank, Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), World Health Organization, United Nations Development Program, and other international statistical resources.

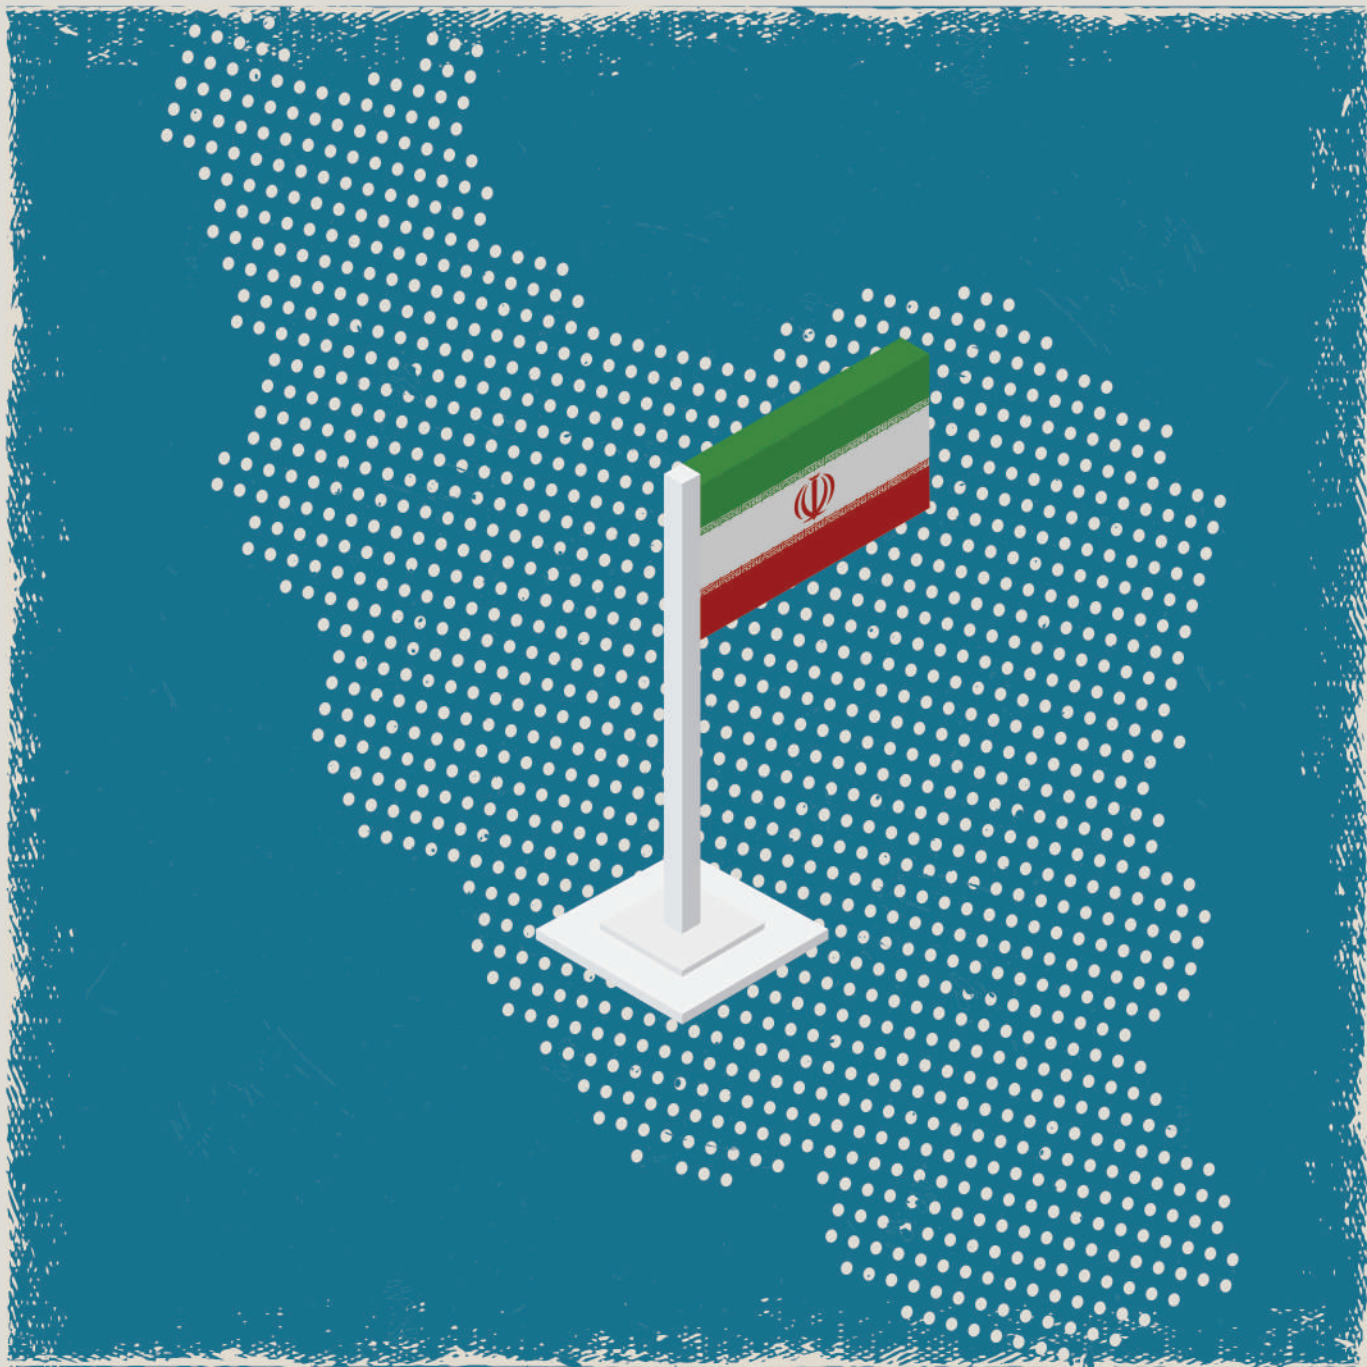

7

The Political Philosophy of Ayatollah Khamenei

Author: Mohsen Mohajernia

This book explains the political philosophy of Grand Ayatollah Sayyed Ali Khamenei in six general points: the methods of understanding and the fundamentals of political philosophy, the relations between personal and social lives, the reality of citizen life, the place of government and governance, and ultimate and ideal inclinations in political philosophy. It is endeavored that besides numerous references to the thoughts of Grand Ayatollah Sayyed Ali Khamenei, the brevity and conciseness should be observed as well.

 www.GreenPalm.net

 info@GreenPalm.net

   +98 999 99 16 140